| RECOMMENDATION: | Recommend ACT | | | (out of 36) | |

REASONS FOR RECOMMENDATION:

Although your total/composite scores are similar on both tests, given that you were fast enough to get a good ACT Reading score, your issues on the ACT Science are fixable with strategy and familiarity. Moreover, issues pertaining to the new version of the SAT (most notably that there is not as much official practice material as there is for the ACT) make our recommendation of the ACT even stronger.

Content: You may benefit from a consultation to further assess Math fundamentals.

Overconfidence: The percentage of missed questions related to carelessness, as well as your having not marked up your test booklet very much, may be a result of ineffective/poor work habits. Take a look at the Guidebook for ways to eliminate carelessness that is specifically due to overconfidence.

Endurance: Your self-reported decrease in energy as the test wore on, as well as the increase in carelessness towards the end of the test, may indicate a need for improved work habits. Take a look at the enclosed Guidebook on ways of building mental and emotional endurance while doing your homework.

Stress: You reported experiencing test anxiety in the past and indicate stress starting after the second break. Take a look at the enclosed Guidebook for some advice on stress management (especially the part on using a count-down timer). We can also discuss some effective tools for stress management during a consultation.
